

The Expression, Communication, and Origins of Meaning Research Group Presents

Kinds of Mindreading

February 6, 2021

A Virtual

Graduate Conference on
Theory of Mind

University of Connecticut

Keynote Speakers:

Prof. Helen Tager-Flusberg (Boston U)

Asst. Prof. Jonathan Phillips (Dartmouth)

The aim of “Kinds of Mindreading” is to generate interdisciplinary discussion on varieties or types of mindreading that are of interest to researchers, including philosophers, psychologists, neuroscientists, and anthropologists. We encourage contributions that discuss specific types of mindreading by either creating novel distinctions or by critically analyzing current and traditional distinctions pertaining to mindreading in light of new research and insights.

For detailed information and abstract submission (Deadline: December 25),
Conference website:

<https://ecomresearchgroup.com/kinds-of-mindreading-graduate-conf/#>

UConn